Bow Thorpe Wall Sconce

With a life-like metal leaf that is laser cut and finished in coco cream, the Bow Thorpe Wall Sconce was designed by Clarence Mallari. The leaf looks so real because the veins were pressed into it with machined precision. An artisanal touch is how patina was introduced with subtle brushstrokes in a slightly darker hue, making it appear to be the freshest of the fallen specimens of autumn. The bobeche, which is shaped like an upturned crown, has mild antiquing applied as well. Notice how the leaf slides onto the forged ring of this tan wall sconce through a sophisticated knot.
